Upland hardest hit by cuts in state aid

By ROBERT BARKER
and JIM MARXEN
Staff Writers

Slashes in state aid brought plenty of tears to the eyes of city officials, but Upland had the best reason to cry.

When state lawmakers adopted a scaled-down 1982-83 budget last month, Upland took a beating.

The city lost nearly $940,000 in aid from Sacramento, a hefty chunk out of its total estimated general fund revenues of around $10 million. By comparison, similarly sized Fontana was cut back by only $387,000.

Rancho Cucamonga lost $282,000, Ontario $1.4 million and Montclair $365,000.

The reason for Upland's woes goes back four years when lawmakers doled out the then-fat state surplus to bail out cities after passage of the property tax-slashing Proposition 13.

Cities, such as Upland, that were heavily dependent on property taxes received more bail-out money. Now they are being obliged by state legislators to "pay" that back.

Upland, whose property tax revenues were reduced by $1.7 million as a result of Proposition 13, was sent a $686,000 bail-out check in 1978, according to League of California Cities analyst Mike Rattigan.

That the city is now paying the "loan" back at $940,000 is unfair, city finance director Tim Brown believes.

The state's position, as outlined by Claremont finance analyst Denise Ovrom, is, "We bailed the cities out and we did them a favor and now that Prop. 13 is really hitting home, the cities have to share the responsibility."

Anticipating this year's severe loss of funding, Upland's City Council won't hold serious budget discussions until August.

The tentative general fund budget, adopted in June, shows an estimated $11 million in expenses, and only about $8.8 million in revenues. Last year, revenues topped $9.2 million.

Cuts in local services appear inevitable.

"I would like to think that we can escape it, but offhand, I don't think that we can, no. When you take $939,000 away, it's kind of hard to absorb that," city manager Lee Travers said.

Travers refused to talk specifically about what city functions may be reduced, but did note that its tree trimming service has been targeted in the past and likely will be again.

Brown said that a number of contingency funds the city has held will probably be dipped into, though he has recommended against it.

Both Travers and Brown would not talk about the possibilities of worker layoffs.

This year wasn't as bad as Rancho Cucamonga officials first anticipated — yet it was still a bad year for city funding, they say.

Finance director Harry Empey sees a combination of factors at work in the reduction of state funds.

Empey first predicted the city would receive only $359,000 in state subventions... that figure is now expected to be about $915,000.

General fund expenditures are expected to be around $5.5 million — a $120,000 dip from 1981-82.

"This is probably the year that (Proposition) 13 caught up with the cities," he said.

"The economy forced it. Had it not gone depressed there still would have been development in this area."

City employees were relatively secure in Rancho Cucamonga during budget hearings. Empey said the city "didn't come close" to dropping any of its workers because of funding cuts.

But a freeze was placed on filling vacant positions.

Empey is cautious about the future.

"I don't see it getting any better," he said of sales taxes which play a big role in the city's budget and are an indicator of the economy. "But I don't think it will go any lower."

Ontario city manager Roger Hughbanks says he isn't sure what impact the state's budget dilemma will have on his city.

"We just don't feel we have the final figures," he said in reference to what appears to be a $1.3 million cut in Ontario's state funding.

"We asked the legislative analyst how they figured that and I'm not sure yet if the figures are correct."

Nevertheless, he predicts his city's $21.1 million general fund will feel the impact of hard times.

"If we have the same picture next year we would be facing substantial layoffs," he said.

Two million dollars will have been funneled out of the city's reserve account to keep operations going through 1982-83, he added.

The expenditures will leave the account with about $723,000 in its reserve.

Hughbanks said he isn't comfortable with that small of a reserve.

"It's not very good if you look at the fact that we have a $21 million general fund budget," he said.

"That's a little over a three percent reserve and that's low in my estimation. I'd feel a little more comfortable with five percent."

Expenditures increased largely because of employee salary increases, increased police spending and jumps in insurance and utility costs, he said.

A brighter budget picture isn't likely to emerge in the near future.

"Everybody's economic crystal ball shows a slump more prolonged than we first thought," Hughbanks said.

"It doesn't seem to me that things are picking up although there are predictions that we've bottomed out."

Montclair didn't have to lay off any workers, but one half-time and one full-time position were eliminated from the city's $6.3 million general fund budget, according to city administrator Mike Milhiser.

Two other full-time public works department positions have been frozen, as well, he said.

Montclair, with its Montclair Plaza shopping mall, has been particularly hurt by the economic recession and its effect on retail sales, though Milhiser is optimistic sales taxes will rebound in the coming year.

Nevertheless, the projection for the coming year remains below what had been estimated for last year, even though Milhiser is counting on a new auto agency in town.

Rancho Cucamonga and other West Valley cities are also victims of sluggish sales tax revenues.

Empey noted that sales taxes for 1981-82 came in 5.5 percent lower than anticipated last summer.

"The president's tax cut was not enough to get people to go out and spend," he said. "Instead people are saving it. There's uncertainty in the economy and employment."

New budget OK'd by county supervisors

By DON GREEN
Staff Writer

With a negligible increase in spending and little in reserve, the county Board of Supervisors adopted an overall county budget Monday of $511.6 million.

Revised figures showed the county with general fund appropriations of $403.5 million. The general fund covers those revenues over which the county has the most discretion.

That figure is an increase of 4.3 percent over the recently completed fiscal year.

All other countywide funds bring the total to $466.7 million. Another $3.8 million was allocated for county libraries in a separately shown fund, bringing the total to $470.5 million.

The county's direct contribution to the running of the medical center in San Bernardino came to $6 million. More than $41 million more from state and federal reimbursements and other revenue make up the rest of the medical center budget. Only the county's contribution is shown in total of $470.5 million for all county funds.

With all medical center appropriations included, the overall county budget came to $511.6 million. The comparable figure adopted for fiscal 1981-82 was $487 million, but that figure does not reflect mid-year adjustments. The actual figure was projected earlier at $480.4 million.

Supervisors launched budget preparations early this year by ordering a hiring freeze and 15 percent reductions for most county departments. Some of those proposed cuts were restored by the county administrative office in meetings with departments, and others were restored last week by the board during budget hearings.

The board approved an ordinance Monday to increase fees in the Building and Safety Department by 13 percent effective on Sept. 1. The move is expected to bring the county $233,441 in additional revenue.

The increases were supported by the Building Industry Association and other organizations as way to prevent a cutback of 8.7 positions and to keep the county from falling behind on plan reviews and building inspections.

Supervisors are scheduled to consider the budgets for county-run special districts in late August.

Bicyclist has a close brush with death

By STEVE SCAUZILLO
Staff Writer

When 21-year-old Christopher Bradley Krantz left without his friend Sunday afternoon, he didn't know the bike trip from Los Angeles to Palm Springs would be over so soon.

Neither did he know that this trick of fate would come close to ending his life as abruptly as it ended the 100 mile trip, after it was only a quarter finished.

The Los Angeles bicyclist, traveling about 15 mph on the Corona Expressway's right-hand bike lane, was struck from behind Sunday at 3:10 p.m. by a motorist allegedly under the influence of drugs.

Today, Krantz is fighting to save the full use of his right arm. One of the nerves in that limb was severed, the others damaged, along with some of the muscles. The artery, also severed in the accident, was repaired at Doctors' Hospital in Montclair.

The rear tire of Krantz's bike was demolished; the lightweight, 10-speed, Schwinn frame, was bent. His sunglasses, lying near the broken glass.

The bike ended up underneath the car driven by Cynthia Ann Elliott, 24, of Baldwin Park, while Krantz's body jerked backwards, bouncing off the hood and crashing through the windshield before finally landing in the front seat, on top of Elliott's young passenger: a seven-week old child.

Elliott was arrested on suspicion of driving under the influence of drugs and causing injury, a felony, said California Highway Patrol Officer Bob Metallo.

The baby boy was not injured and has been placed in the custody of the San Bernardino Department of Social Services, said Metallo.

Krantz was taken to Doctors' Hospital in Montclair with two broken arms, a broken right leg, and a severed artery and nerves in his right arm, said Metallo.

CHP investigator Julio Halog, said when he arrived at the scene, paramedics and firemen worked quickly to remove Krantz from inside the car.

"He spoke to me and was in good humor. He said he was going about 15 miles per hour with a tailwind. All he recalls was he was hit and that was that."

Elliott's car, traveling at 40 mph, swerved over the solid white line that separates the roadway from the bike lane, said Metallo, striking Krantz.

After spending a night in the Intensive Care Unit, Krantz was transferred to Glendale Adventist Hospital in good condition, at the request of his father, according to a hospital spokesman.

Krantz, an experienced bicyclist, was used to making long bike trips, said his friend and fellow classmate from Cal State Los Angeles, Anthony Duran.

Duran overslept and didn't make the trip, so Krantz left without him. When Duran spoke with him in his hospital bed, he found out that Krantz made a wrong turn on a new route and went to Lake Elsinore instead.

He was on his way back home to Alhambra when the accident occurred.

Considering the seriousness of the accident, Duran concluded that his friend was lucky to be alive.

"We are both SAE's (Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity). We came to the simple conclusion: God is an SAE ... he should've been dead."

Program looks at women, alcohol

Debbie Smith, Ph.D., director of California Women's Commission on Alcoholism, will present information on women and alcohol during her presentation on "Alcoholic Women Are Special" on Saturday, Aug. 7, from 9-11 a.m. at Pomona Valley Community Hospital's Pitzer Auditorium, 1798 N. Garey Ave., Pomona.

According to Smith, women's social drinking habits have been increasing at a more rapid rate than men's, and as many women as men are today undergoing treatment for alcoholism. Part of her presentation will illustrate the various socio-economic factors which have a strong impact on women's drinking patterns such as more women working outside the home in traditionally male-dominated occupations, and more women serving as heads of families.

Degrees Plus to meet

Degrees Plus, a meeting place for single people with master's degrees or other post graduate work, will meet Saturday, Aug. 7 at 8 p.m. in Granada Hills.

Cruise line offers 'super savings' fare

In recognition of its 10th anniversary since inaugurating West Coast passenger service, Delta Line Cruises is offering a "super savings" fare on five sailings during August and September.

Passengers purchasing one full cruise fare around South America may purchase the second fare at one-half the cost of the full cruise.

"This 50 percent reduction on the second fare, based on two persons sharing a stateroom, represents a savings of $4,500 to $8,800 — making it the best buy in the cruise industry," said Fred Stone, General Manager of passenger sales for the line.

"This is the opportunity of a lifetime to see and transit both the wondrous Panama Canal and the majestic Strait of Magellan," he added.

To further mark its 10th anniversary, the cruise line has extended through the end of the year its bonus offering of free shore excursions.

"Although our two for the price of one-and-one-half offering applies only to the full cruise, travelers with limited time can take one of the air/sea programs and realize a substantial savings with free shore excursions," said Stone.

Approximately every two weeks, a Delta Lines' Cruiseline sails from Vancouver, Seattle/Tacoma, San Francisco and Los Angeles to Mexico, the Caribbean and around South America.

For information on the "super savings" fare, contact travel agents or Delta Line Cruises, nationwide toll free (800) 227-3676; within California (800) 652-1426.

Master gardener

By MIKE NUNN
Dear Master Gardener:

Q. I would like some information on Jerusalem artichokes. How do I grow and take care of them?
A. The Jerusalem artichoke is not an artichoke at all. The plant belongs to the Helianthus family and is related to the common sunflower. It is a perennial growing to a height of about 6 to 10 feet. Like its family the sunflower, it will grow in practically any type of garden soil with full sunlight.

To grow them, start with tubers in the same manner as potatoes. The plant will spread rapidly; if left to itself, it will take over. It is recommended that the tubers be harvested every year and two or three be saved for planting. The plants have bright yellow flower heads and when controlled have also functioned well as a quick temporary screen or hedge. They can be harvested about 100 days after planting.

Q. I would like to use a mulch in my garden but am not certain what to use. Could you give some suggestions?

A. A mulch can be a variety of items. Some of the items which have been used successfully by gardeners include peat moss, leaves, straw, sawdust, ground bark, compost, manure, polyethylene film, and paper. The use of a mulch will help prevent surface crust which stops the water from going down into the root zone.

A mulch will help the pore spaces of the soil remain open. Mulches will also help in weed control but often only black plastic will take care of all varieties of weeds and grasses. Mulches will slow down the evaporation of water in the top six inches of soil and a straw mulch has been known to reduce evaporation up to 70 percent.

Organic mulches should be applied to a thickness of about two inches for fine materials and four inches for coarse materials such as straw. If untreated sawdust is used, it should be noted that you may have to increase the supply of nitrogen because soil bacteria decomposing the sawdust will use up some of the available nitrogen and deprive the plants of their full supply.

Q. Do you have any suggestions for vegetables that can be planted this time of year?

A. There are a number of vegetables that can be planted in July. As in all cases care must be exercised to obtain varieties that will withstand the relatively high summer heat of this area. Both lima and snap beans can be started; Burpee's "Henderson bush" and "Fordhook 242" are recommended for hot summer areas.

Claremont workers get pay raises

The Claremont City Council has approved pay raises for city employees retroactive to July 5.

Agreement has been reached with the Claremont Police Officers Association for increases ranging between 4 and 6.5 percent. The amount depends upon the department member's classification, said Maureen Stapleton, assistant to the city manager.

Employees in skilled, technical and supervisory classifications received 7 percent salary increases. Those in management were granted 6 percent increases.

Employees in "field operations" such as maintenance, parks, sanitation, streets and garage personnel were covered under a two-year contract now in its second year. They received 7 percent increases under that contract.

Last year the 147 city employees were granted 9 percent increases.

Stapleton said the city staff and council members took into consideration a reduced anticipated fiscal budget when determining the salary figures.

Doctor reports 'The turista' caused by food

By LEO BOWLER
Copley News Service

"It's not the water; it's the food — I'm sure of that," says a foremost expert on what is often called "the turista," an affliction that strikes travelers visiting the undeveloped nations of the world.

The expert is Dr. Herbert DuPont of the University of Texas, who has spent years studying the malady, a painful and uncomfortable diarrhea which evokes groans from those who get it and bad jokes from those who don't.

In a telephone interview, he exploded some commonly held opinions about the disease, offered some fascinating facts about it and issued some valuable advice to would-be travelers.

DuPont, the director of clinical microbiology at the university, is in a position to know. He is the chief scientist in a project financed by the federal National Institutes of Health and a pharmaceutical association. The project set out to find ways to prevent the disease and, when it strikes, to cure it.

The disease is caused by a bug, only recently isolated, which scientists call an enterotoxigenic variant of E. coli, a bacterium which lives in everyone's intestinal tract.

The variant, however, is normally found only in undeveloped nations. This is a curious situation for which scientists have not found an explanation. To the people in these parts of the world, who have long since developed an immunity, the bug is harmless, but to a visitor the bug is a formidable enemy.

When it enters the intestinal tract of a non-immune person, it forms a toxic substance that causes the intestine to leak fluid. Whammo — instant incapacitation.

Although often called "turista" because many Americans encounter it as tourists in Mexico, the disease is a problem in many other places.

"It is particularly virulent in Southeast Asia, and it is found on the Indian subcontinent, in most of Africa and all of Latin America, except Costa Rica," DuPont said. "For some reason it doesn't seem to hit visitors in Costa Rica."

DuPont and his fellow scientists selected Guadalajara, Mexico, as the site of the study, partly because of the availability of a steady supply of incoming Americans.

Many young Americans study there, some in exchange programs. As soon as some arrived, DuPont signed them up in the investigation.

"About 40 percent got the turista," he said. "We treated about 300 cases a season."

By testing medicines, DuPont found that an antibiotic, trimethoprim-sulfamethoxazole, or TMP-SMX, was the most effective both in preventing the disease and in treating it.

"It will stop it within 24 hours in most cases," he said, "and in virtually all cases by 72 hours."

DuPont said many reasons may account for those who go to Mexico and never get the disease.

One factor, he said, is the care with which they select their meals. The researchers found that those who ate in restaurants had more problems than those who prepared their own food in their apartments.

Others were believed to have built up a partial immunity before they entered the program.

"The individual's history of intestinal disorders was a good predictor," DuPont said. "If he had a lot of trouble in the past, he is more likely to get the turista."

The amount of hydrochloric acid secreted by the individual's stomach seems to make a lot of difference.

"Those who have had surgery for peptic ulcer, or who are taking medicine to reduce the acid, are good candidates for turista," he said.

"On the other hand, a person who has a high acid flow, like someone who gets a lot of heartburn, may not get it. That hydrochloric acid really chews up those bugs."

DuPont tested both the food and water consumed by his patients and found the offending bacteria in the food but not in the water. He concluded that although the water may contain viruses which could cause disease, the main cause of turista is contaminated food.

Other studies have confirmed this finding. Although the antibiotic will prevent the onset of the disease, DuPont doesn't recommend that it be used in this manner except in special cases because of the chance of side-effects. He said that one double dose a day during the trip and for three days afterward will prevent the disease in most cases.

However, he said most patients should wait until they get the disease before beginning medication. The recommendation is for one double dose twice a day for five days.

THE DAILY REPORT

Court orders R.C. landowner to clear debris from street

By ANDREA ADELSON
Staff Writer

Residents of La Mesa Drive may have a road once again after nearly eight weeks without access to a street in front of their homes.

But it won't be the asphalt pavement that had been chewed up by a bulldozer June 5.

A Superior Court judge ordered a landowner Tuesday to only clear debris from a section of the Rancho Cucamonga street that had been ripped out and made impassable. William Blackwell had La Mesa chewed up to prove a point to his neighbors.

The preliminary injunction bars Blackwell from continuing to obstruct the 9400 block of La Mesa Drive, the first step in a $300,000 lawsuit for damages sought by residents Stephen and Betty Williams.

The judgement did not order Blackwell to repave the road, because it is unclear who actually did blacktop the road some years ago, Charles Daskow, the Williams' attorney, said. Repaving was on one condition sought in the Williams' injunction, he said.

Blackwell, representing himself in a hearing in West Valley Superior Court, argued the court had no right to tell a landowner what to do with his property, Daskow related.

Judge Charles Bierschbach disagreed.

Blackwell, a Bay area resident, has been unavailable for comment.

He has presented a property deed in court, laying claim to a slice of La Mesa Drive itself. To insure no one drives across his property, Blackwell ordered the 30-by-140 strip foot strip plowed into rubble. He bought it 10 years ago in a tax delinquency sale, and has tried to sell it to his neighbors since.

The result has been a form of street warfare: a blockade of asphalt chip bunkers piled at either end that keeps residents from their driveways.

"We believe the public has an implied easement (to the street)," Daskow said, overriding Blackwell's ownership claim to do what he wishes with the property. "Implied (public) dedication occurred a long time ago" because the street has been publicly used for 20 years.

But the Williams are skeptical their mangled street will be restored.

"I think he will ignore (the order)," Betty Williams said, describing Blackwell as someone who has acted above the law before — by ripping up the street — and is likely to do the same again.

Club sued over cancelled rock concert

By JIM MARXEN
Staff Writer

Wolf and Rissmiller could have started this way.

That thought was probably running through Doug Heide's head last month when his first foray into the rock promotion business collapsed in a heap of communications breakdowns.

But Heide and his 2-D Productions partner Delwayne Koffler promised to put on a show in the West Valley and apparently they will accomplish their dream this weekend.

"A lot of kids were asking me, 'Why do we have to go to Hollywood to see a rock show? Why do we have to go 60 miles?'"

"So I knew some people and I decided to put on a show," Heide said following the early demise of his first show in Rancho Cucamonga.

Heide was bitter about the cancellation of that show and has filed a $1,100-suit against owners of the building where it was to have taken place.

He had been led to believe from owners of Sweeten Hall that the original show would not require a city permit, he said.

Jack Harris, rental manager for the hall, said Heide had told him the show would be a dance to benefit alcoholics — not a rock concert.

"If you just have a small dance you don't need a license," Harris said. "But when it turned out to be a rock concert they needed a license and the city wouldn't give it to them."

(Heide said he was "totally up front" about the show and had given Harris all the details during conversations that took place "once or twice a week".)

Sheriff deputies who had seen flyers for the show, told Harris the true nature of the "dance", the hall manager said.

Deputies told Harris that a city permit was required for the concert.

Harris in turn informed Heide who attempted to get the permit only days before the event was to take place.

The city turned down his application.

Sheriff officials, who reviewed Heide's permit application, say the city was within its right to reject the permit because the hall, located in a residential area, is not suited for a rock show.

"It came as a total surprise," Heide said of the cancellation. "We had a contract (with Sweeten Hall) that said they had to cancel within (at least) ten days before the show. They broke their agreement."

He hopes to recover his expenses for that show — expenses which include paying the three bands which were to have appeared and promotional costs.

Following the cancellation tickets were refunded and Heide began looking for a new venue for his concert.

"We felt we owed it to ourselves to do another show," Heide said. "And we owed it to the kids too."

He contacted officials at Upland's Astara who were willing to rent their auditorium.

Once again, tickets are on sale. But this time Heide is confident the show will indeed go on.

"The city of Upland has been great," he said. "We sailed right through."

Astara officials and Upland police say they have no problems with the way Heide's show is being organized and the city has approved Heide's permit application.

Heide expects "several hundred" rock enthusiasts to attend this Saturday night's show.

Doors for the concert will open at 7:30.

Headlining the bill will be Stepmother (which was to headline the Rancho Cucamonga show), The Reporters and The Dangers.

Advance tickets, sold at Rhino Records in Claremont, Turpentine Cat Video in Upland, Ontario Music and Music Plus in Rancho Cucamonga.

County delays action on plan

The county Board of Supervisors on Tuesday delayed final adoption of an ordinance putting into place the Chino Hills specific plan and review of a program for financing its public improvements until Aug. 2.

Final adoption of a series of general plan amendments, including the Chino Hills specific plan, was also continued. All three items are scheduled to be heard at 3 p.m. Monday.
